

The barograph for the "expressed" score represents your social energy and how social others will perceive you to be.

The barograph for the "wanted" score represents how social you desire to be and how much social energy you have.

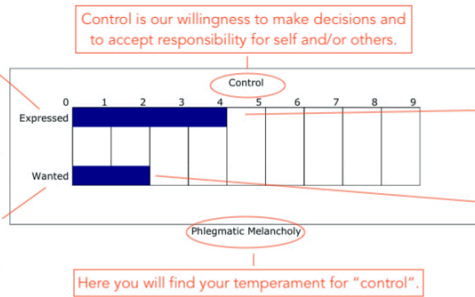

A low expressed score (0 - 4) represents low social energies but high intellectual/analytical energies. Higher the score (5 - 9) the more social you will appear.

A low wanted score represents a low desire to socialize and a high score represents a higher need and desire to socialize.

The barograph for the "expressed" represents how much control you need over yourself and others.

The barograph for the "wanted" score represents how willing you are to accept control over your own life.

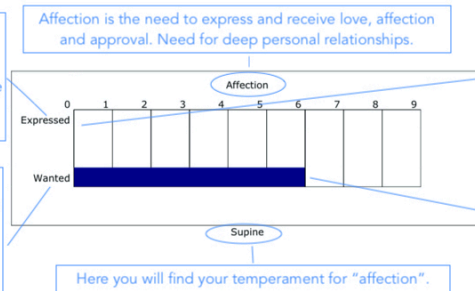

"Expressed" 0 represents the lowest and 9 the highest need or desire to control others and yourself

"Wanted" 0 represents the lowest and 9 the highest for tolerance of being controlled.

The barograph for the "expressed" score represents how much emotional and relational love and affection that you show to your closest people.

The barograph for the "wanted" score represents how much relational or emotional love and affection you desire. Also, how many close friends you need or desire.

In the "expressed" column, the lowest expression for emotional affection is represented by the number 0 and the highest by the number 9.

In the "wanted" column, the lowest amount of emotional need is represented by the number 0 and the highest need by the number 9.